

AGV systems are vehicles designed to perform material transport, especially in repetitive tasks and with high throughput.

They are operated using a series of laser scanners, bumpers, proximity sensors, ultrasonic sensors, and safety systems for their proper movement and handling of the load.

